Pin It to Win It

Pretend that you are running for president of your school. Create a button to publicize your campaign. Decorate the button below with crayons, markers, and glitter. Be sure to include a picture of yourself as well as a catchy slogan that summarizes why people should vote for you. When you are finished, cut out your button and use tape or a safety pin to attach it to your shirt.

May the Best Treat Win!

Hold an election to determine which yummy treat rules your room.

Teachers, help your students make a ballot box by wrapping a shoebox (with a slot cut in the top) in red, white, and blue paper. As a class, come up with a list of five most favorite foods. Then ask each student to choose his or her favorite, write it on a slip of paper, fold it up, and drop it into the ballot box. Open each ballot, count the votes, and keep a running tally on the board.

After all of the votes are counted, have students make a pie chart of the results using the circle below. They can divide and color in sections of the pie chart using the colors to the left (you can help them with fractions if needed!). As a surprise, have a post-election party and serve the winning treat!
